Highlanders' last hurrah

U.H.S.

The Class of 1985

Throwing a little Highlander spirit into their ceremonies, 550 Upland High School graduates turned Friday night into one to remember.

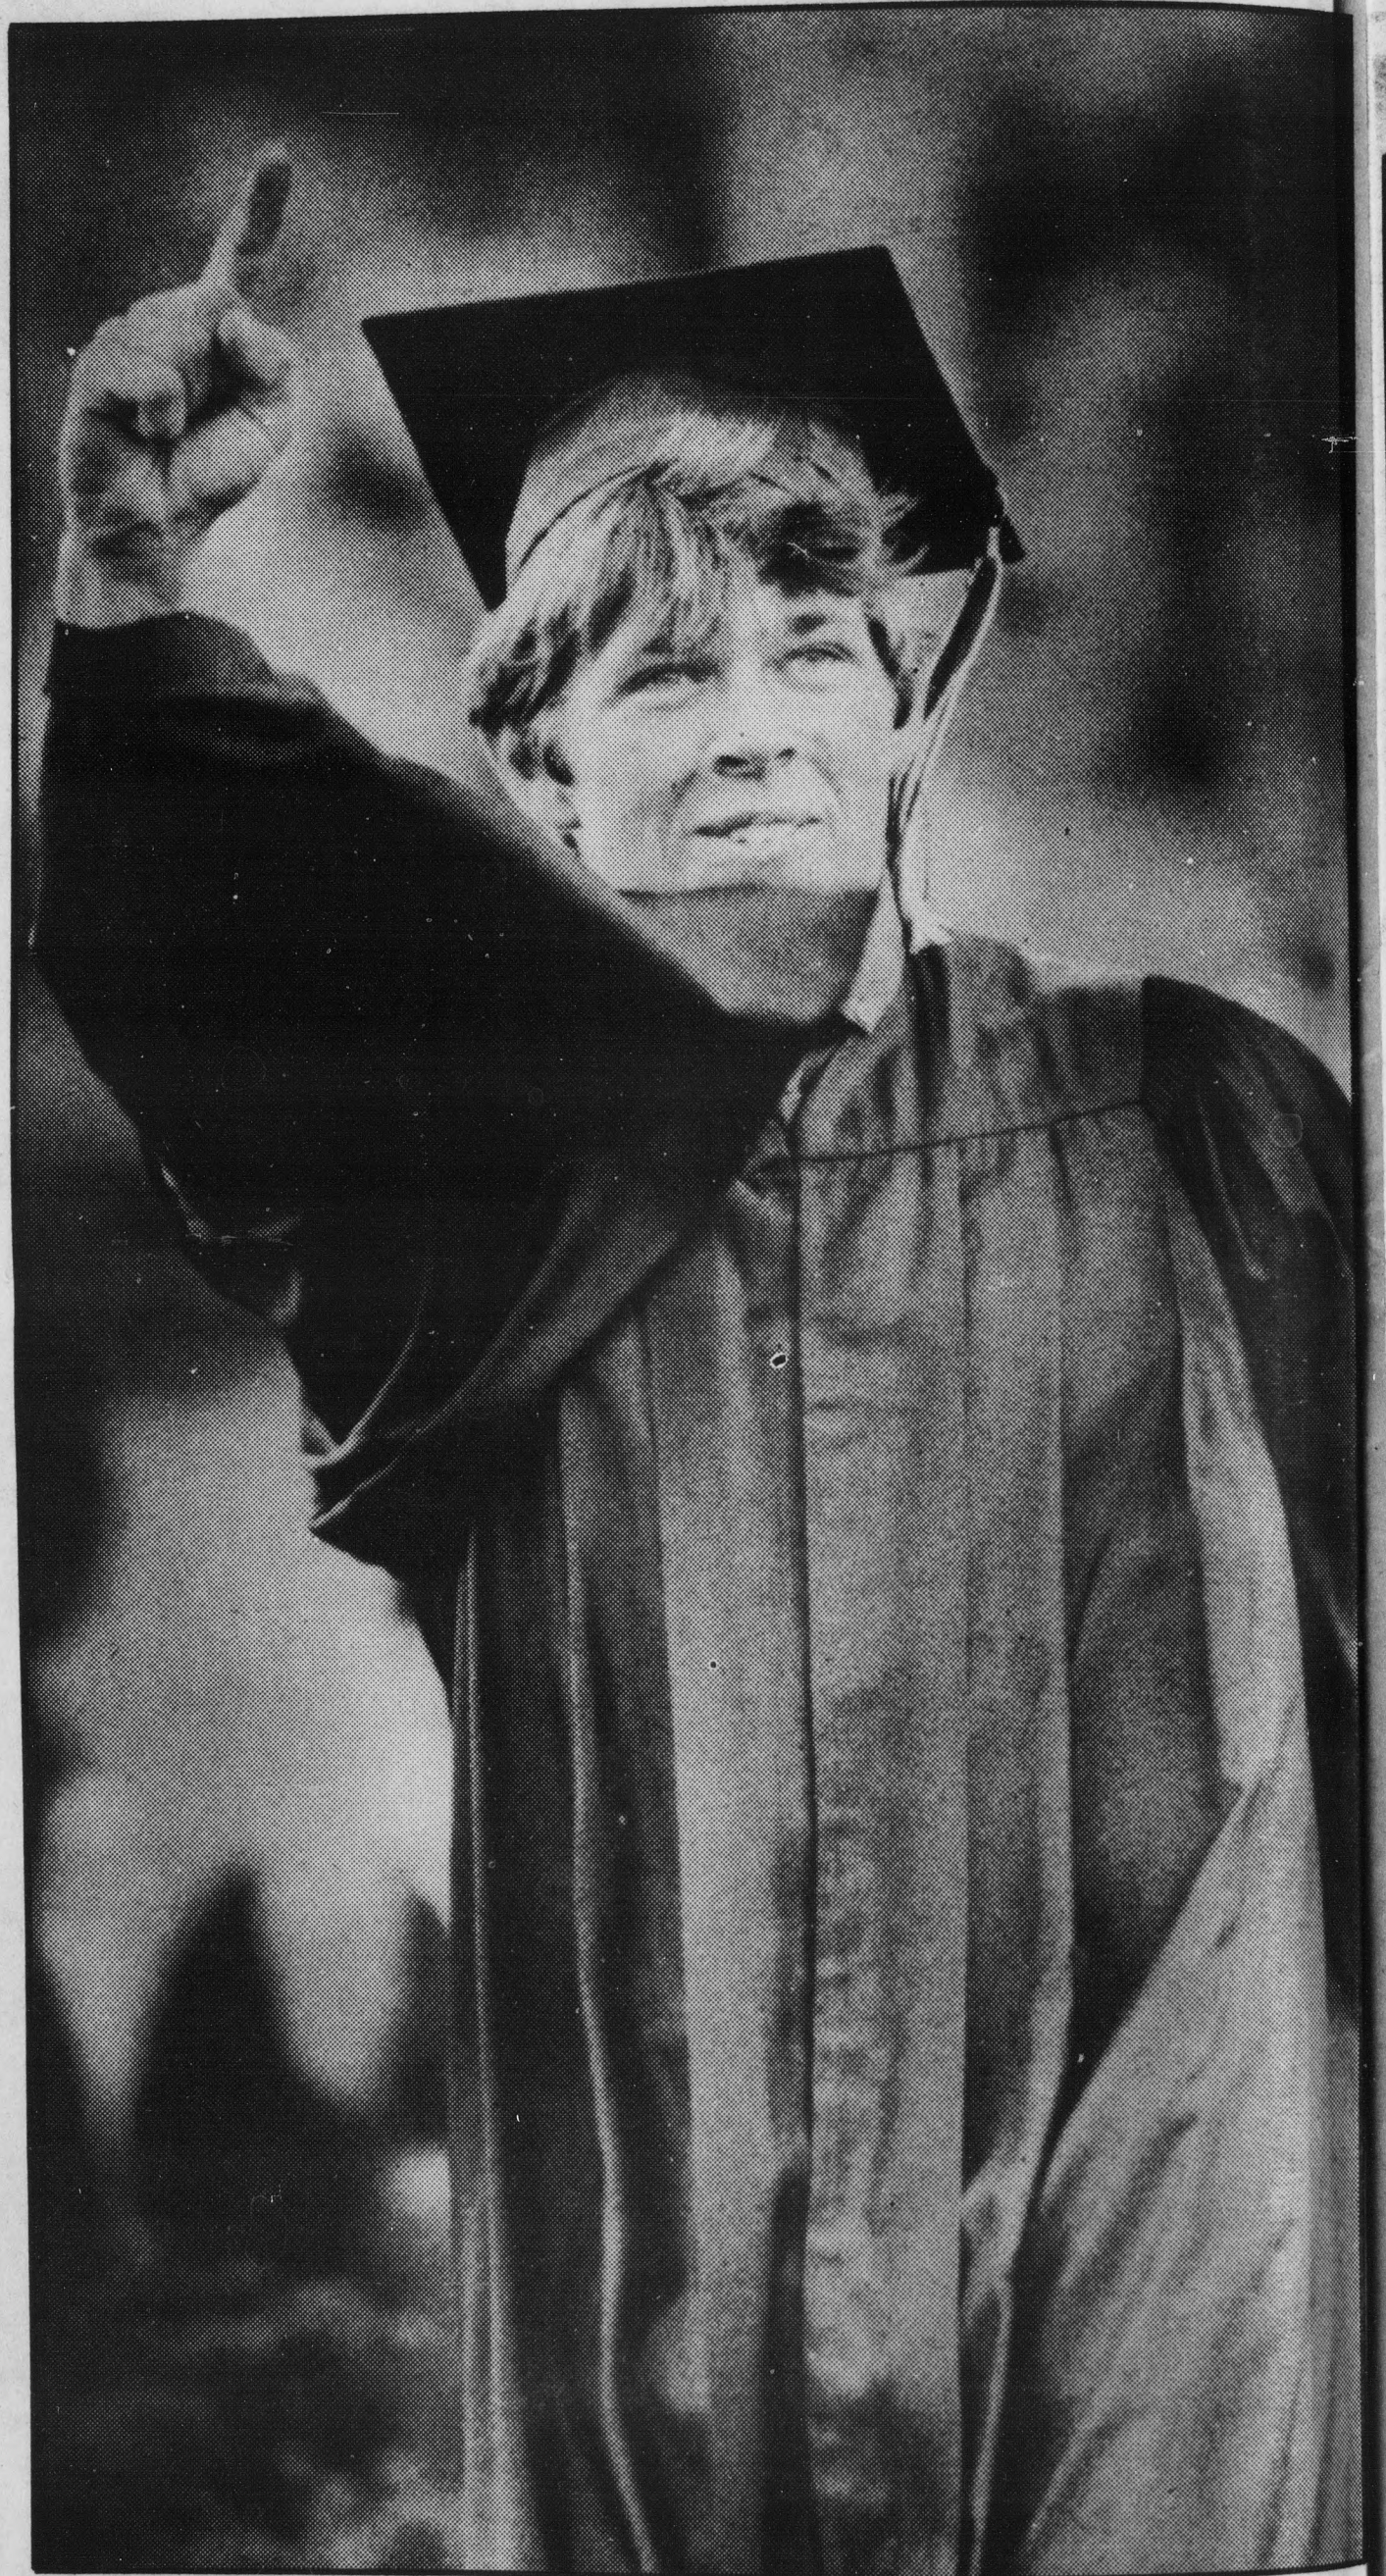

Adopting the theme solipsism, or the theory the self is the only reality, three senior speakers told their classmates to settle for only the best.

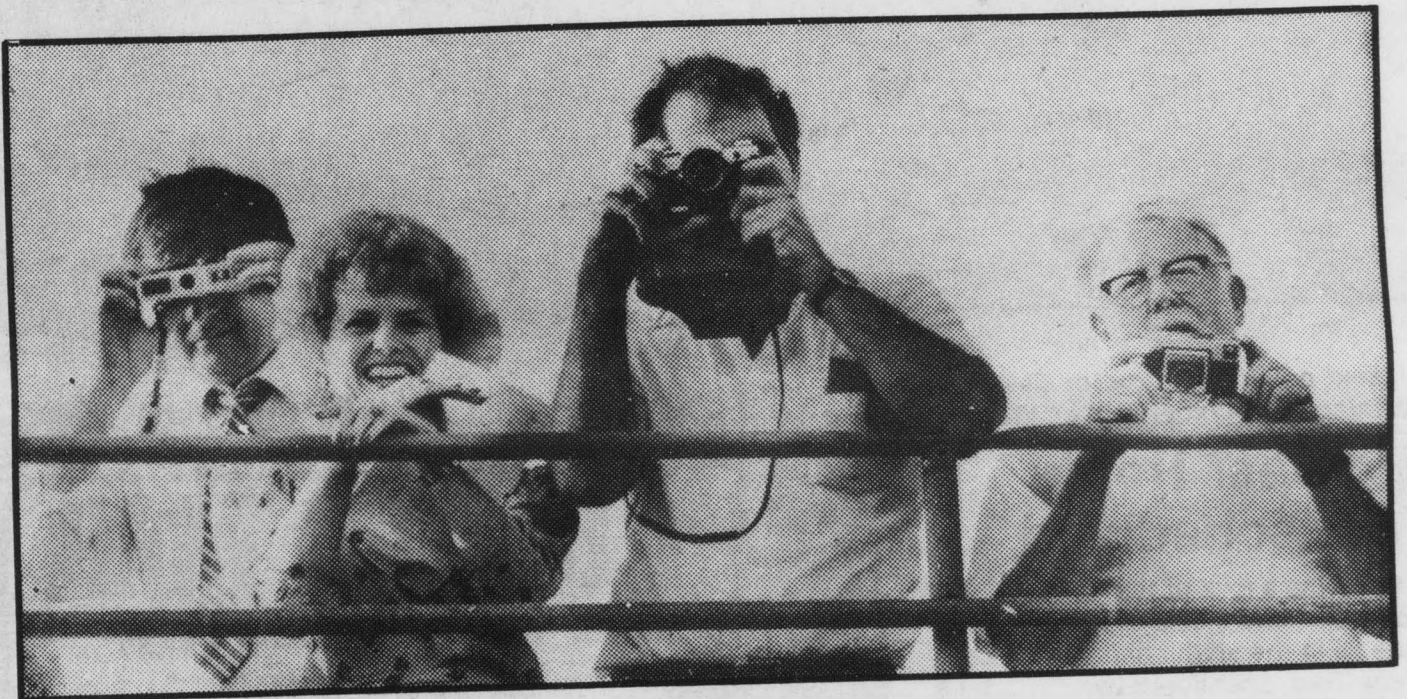

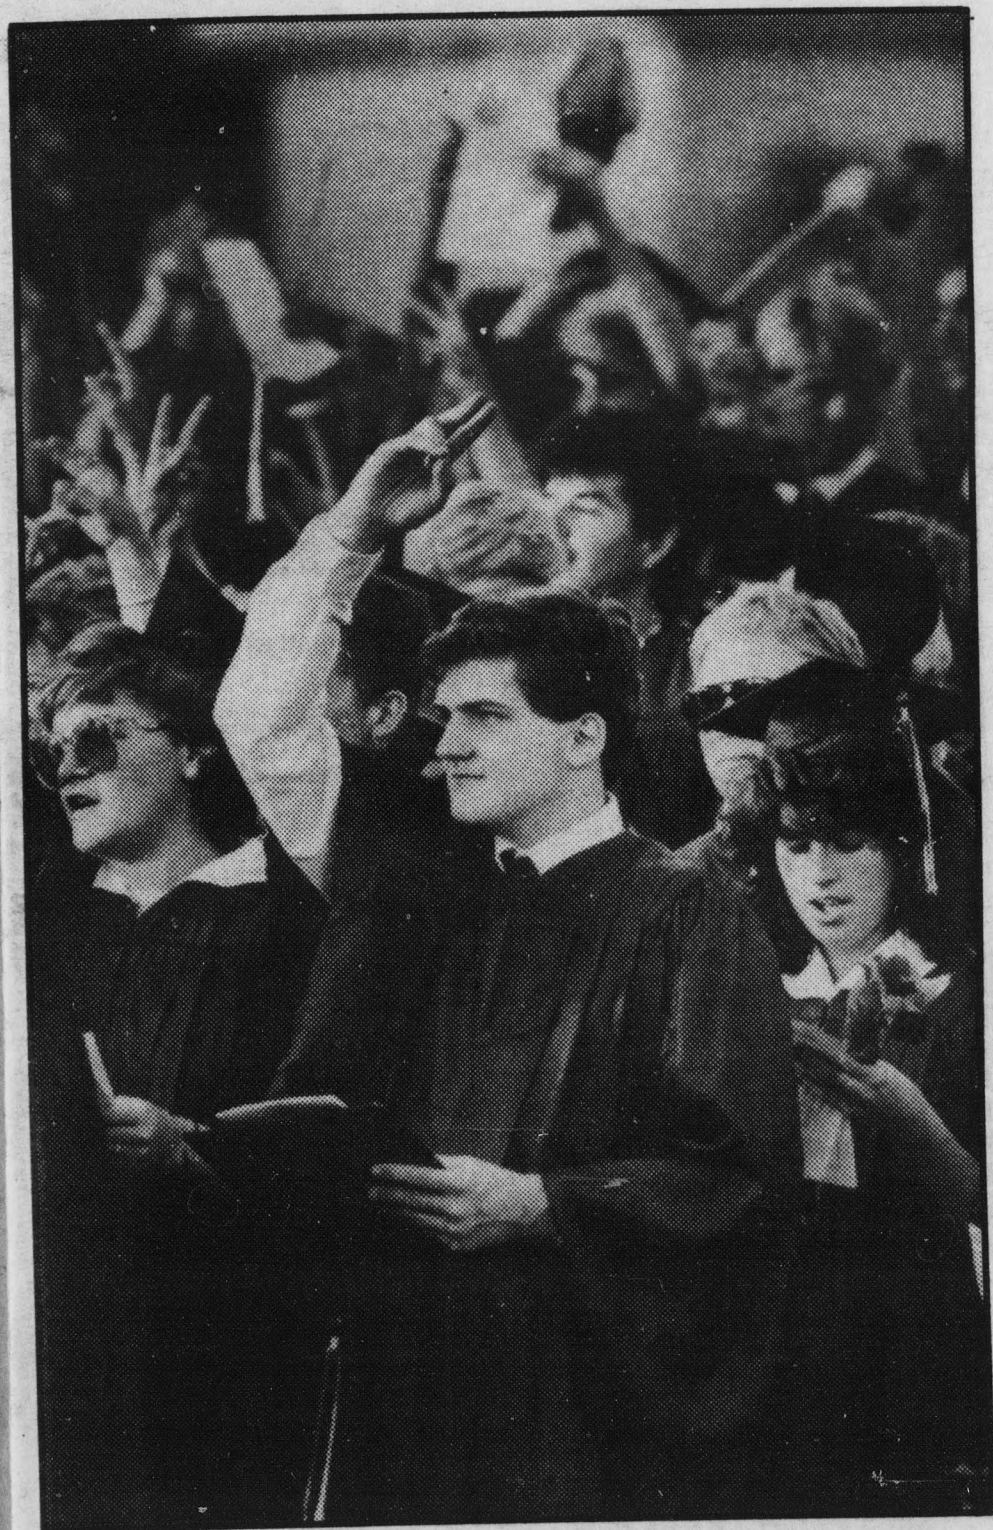

"The world is open to all your hopes and envisions. Do not deny yourself anything but the best," speakers Kai Brothers, Wendy Chow and Tiffany Prusia said before a packed stadium of parents, relatives and friends.

"Do not hope for the future, do not regret the past. Keep your sense of humor and continue in the path of your desires and ambitions," they said.

The high school's largest graduating class ever celebrated all night long by tossing beach balls and dancing with flowers between their teeth. Some even imitated surfers with a cry of "yeowza."

And after the diplomas had been handed out and parents had clicked camera shutters, the class of '85 settled back to hear senior Julie Abbott sing a song about their future, "We've Only Just Begun."

June 14 was it for Chris Mayr and his Upland High School classmates. After four years of hitting the books, high school came to an end with graduation. On the cover: Mayr couldn't hide his feelings after getting his diploma. Upland art teacher paints for love of it

By Terri Tirella

When Upland art instructor Beverly "Bev" Powell started painting it was more as an effort to save her sanity than a decision to pursue a teaching career.

"My husband traveled a lot and painting saved my sanity," Powell said. "I'd put the kids to bed and then do art work."

"I'd been interested in art all my life and had tried almost every form of it in school, but I didn't get to paint much," Powell said. "I did a little watercolor, but nothing like I do now."

When she decided she wanted to paint, she looked for courses offered in the community.

"When the boys were in school I took classes every day," Powell said. She has studied at Chaffey College, Chaffey Community Adult Classes and studied under a number of artists in Southern California.

"When I was asked to teach painting in a mobile home park, I told my teacher I didn't think I was ready," she said, but with support from both her instructor and her husband, she decided to give it a try.

Rotarians lend a helping hand to the Girl Scouts

By Terri Tirella

The Rancho Cucamonga Rotarians and the Girl Scouts of America have discovered each other through serendipity, with the all-male organization now supporting the Scouts' outreach program at the San Gabriel Valley Labor Camp.

The club gave $3,000 to the Girl Scouts to fund a program for girls living at the camp. The program includes a bilingual aide for six hours a week, registration fee for the girls, monthly supplies for meetings, uniforms and a weekend trip to a Girl Scout house.

Evelyn Brown, community services director for the Spanish Trails Girl Scouts Council, had gone to the Magic Lamp Inn in Rancho Cucamonga to speak to a different service club.

"I had been given the wrong date, so there I was with all my stuff, when I overheard one of the men from Rotary saying their guest speaker had just cancelled and what were they going to do for a program," she said.

Brown said she introduced herself and offered to fill in. "I didn't know anyone and I wasn't begging for money or anything," she said.

Brown told the Rotarians about the alternative program at the labor camp, a program to provide scouting opportunities to girls who normally wouldn't be able to participate. "They were interested and said they wanted to help, not only financially, but with donating time."

Girl Scouting is the only recreational activity available for the girls at the labor camp. "They are isolated there," said Mary Adoki, membership extension specialist for the Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council. "It's a little world or like a little village on its own."

Adoki said the families at the labor camp, which is located north of Arrow Highway, near Vineyard Avenue, are usually supported by fathers in the country on work visas, picking fruit on farms.

"They have large families and don't make a lot of money," Adoki said. "There are no recreation facilities or stores nearby, and because of the money shortage, there are not a lot of resources at home."

The special outreach troop currently has 19 members in grades kindergarten through sixth and all of the members have Spanish as a primary language. "Eleven of the girls speak English fairly well because of the bilingual programs in school," Adoki said.

The program began last August. Adoki said the parents were supportive and "anxious to have us come." She said the traditional scouting program wouldn't work at the labor camp for several reasons.

Usually a troop leader is a mother of one of the scouts who volunteers her time. Adoki said since the women at the camp were spoke no English, it would be difficult to train them. "They have so many little ones that it's hard for them and there's food on the stove it's unlikely that Jennifer Ward, right, portrayed Thomas Edison in the Cabrillo School students' salute to the inventor. The show, entitled, "The Electric Sunshine Man," was performed for parents and was videotaped for the school.

Cabrillo School students study historical figures the fun way

Cabrillo School students in Upland learned Thursday one of the best ways to study a historical figure is to make the project fun.

So the students took a few costumes, added a few snazzy songs and a bit of high stepping, and the class assignment didn't appear to be so bad.

The school's fourth and fifth graders have spent months preparing the songs for their rousing version of, "The Electric Sunshine Man."

The "man" is Thomas Edison, the inventor of, among other things, the electric light bulb and the phonograph.

The musical salute covered Edison's life, from his difficult days in school when his teacher thought he was unteachable to the time when most of the world recognized him as one of the top inventors ever.

R.C. Elks Lodge to hold alcohol drug program

The Rancho Cucamonga Elks Lodge 2570 will sponsor an alcohol drug awareness program on Thursday, June 27, at the lodge, 12481 Base Line Road.

The program is geared for both parents and their children and will feature guest speaker, Don Newcombe from the Los Angeles Dodgers, a former major leaguer.

Junior Crime Busters, a project sponsored by the San Bernardino Sheriff's Department, will also be featured during the awareness program via a puppet show.

The program, with free admission, will begin at 8:30 p.m. A buffet dinner of spaghetti, fried chicken and a salad bar, will be served from 5:30 to 8 p.m. for $5.

For more information, call 989-1894.

Performers showed their production to parents earlier this week and their fellow students. Thursday the production was videotaped for the "school film archives" and posterity, said Terry Wilhelm, teacher who handled the taping.

Fifth graders at Cabrillo study American history. About 120 students in four classes began gearing up for their show last week. Teachers involved were Bev Erickson, Judy Albright, Florine Nystrom and Ruth Holtan.

Upland Library Friends collect items for sale

Friends of the Upland Library are collecting items to sell at its annual garage sale on Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the west patio of the library, 450 N. Euclid Ave.

The Friends are urging local residents to bring saleable merchandise to the library on June 20 or 21. Those donating will receive a receipt for the present market value of the item, making it eligible as a federal income tax deduction.

The annual garage sale is run by the Friends to raise funds for the purchase of public-use items such as portable record players, video disc players, patio tables and chairs and computers. The children's programs are also financially supported by the Friends.

Art objects, magazines, paperbacks, records and tools are acceptable items. Not accepted are shoes, clothing or heavy appliances.

Drop off donations down the ramp off of east D Street in the service entry.

Those who can't get to the library with their donations may call 946-7635, 981-1850 or 982-6589 for free pick up service. Call in advance for the service, which will be on Friday, June 21, between 3:30 to 7:30 p.m.

they could get out of the house long enough" to continue the program, she said.

"We run the meetings, play games with them, sing songs, do arts and crafts and teach them about nutrition, things like that," Adoki said.

"When they see us driving in, their faces light up, it's important to them ... I know they are glad we are there, too," she said.

"We don't want to be just a checkbook club," said Ron Sakala, president of the Rancho Cucamonga Rotarians. "We want to help the girls with learning what our community is about, maybe with outings in the park with our families or excursions."

"We don't discriminate between boys and girls; we support girls softball teams, AYSO soccer teams. We're not chauvanistic," Sakala said.

The Rotarians raise most of their funds through internal fund-raisers or small projects. The club also donates money to youth team sports, the Boy Scouts and scholarships. "The Rotary Club is geared to youth," he said. □

IT TAKES THE CAKE

You may never pay as much attention to any pastry in your life as you do to your wedding cake. Here are some current thoughts on the subject.

Love chocolate, but you want a traditional wedding cake? You can have a white cake with chocolate filling, or a devil's food cake with icing. Or, for a really classy twist, why not white chocolate cake and icing? Don't forget to choose a topper for your cake. Flowers are becoming increasingly popular, but you may prefer the traditional little bride and groom. For sentiment, you might choose to use your parents' cake-topper, favorite dolls from your childhood, or even the king and queen from your chess set. Whatever you choose, be sure to save it for use as an anniversary centerpiece.

If your baker isn't also your caterer, offer some extra help in cake design. A picture of your reception hall may inspire the perfect "architecture" for your cake; a copy of your menu will help avoid conflicts of flavors. We take the cake when it comes to planning your wedding. You'll find your bridal experts at Deborah's.

Shredded taxes

Time was when most people used to keep their important documents or family records at home in paper boxes either in the closet or under the bed.

When people ran out of space or just didn't want to keep the dusty old boxes around anymore they simply threw them out in the daily garbage.

Some people then started to use bank safety deposit boxes as a catchall for all documents that would fit into the relatively small spaces.

Well times have changed for the better or worse, depending upon how one looks at it. The newest way to dispose of personal or sensitive documents is to shred them, according to Morton Morris, owner of Barmar Professional Services in Upland.

Barmar stores records but also offers professional shredding services.

"Doctors, lawyers and accountants use shredding the most but more people are using it to get rid of their personal records," said Barbara Morris. "Many people just want to destroy their personal papers and not just throw them out in the garbage."

Most of Barmar's business deals with customers wanting to get rid of Internal Revenue Service, medical and other financial records. The shredding machine is powerful enough to cut up even pennies. The Morrises, though, only shred a penny for demonstration purposes.

Mrs. Morris is quick to relate her favorite account of one of the business' customers.

A woman walked into the 840 W. 9th St. business and told Mrs. Morris she had three questions. How much did it cost to shred some papers; could she do it herself; and could she take the shreds home?

Mrs. Morris told the woman she could do it herself and would be able to take the shreds wherever she wanted.

So the woman did. While she was shredding a garbage bag full of letters, the woman explained to Mrs. Morris that the correspondences were from her former boyfriend who had left her for the woman's best friend.

"She said she would have burned them in the fireplace but she didn't have a fireplace and wouldn't go through the trouble of cleaning up the mess anyway because the boyfriend wasn't worth the trouble," Mrs. Morris said with a smile.

The woman told Mrs. Morris the shredding was symbolic because cutting up each piece of paper would be like slicing the boyfriend up into small pieces.

The shreds then were used in the woman's cat's litter box.

s for the dogs

The Morrisises simply toss most of the shreds into the garbage anyway since no one can read the contents of the papers. But some people use the shreds for garden mulch or for packing cartons.

Although most of the Morris' clients aren't that colorful, the owners agree that shredding is a comment on today's society.

"I'm finding that dealing with personal records can be a very sensitive thing with people. People are paranoid," Mrs. Morris said. "They also want to maintain their privacy."

Morris agreed. "I think the growing need by people to have their papers or records shredded shows the vulnerability people feel and the fear of lawsuits they have."

The business even offers mobile service. The shredding machine can be transported to other locations. □

Morton Morris, owner of Barmar Professional Services, says an attractive aspect of his paper shredding-record storage business is that the paper shredder is portable (left). Shredded papers (top right) provide warmth and a comfortable setting for Tuffy in the recovery room at the West End Shelter for Animals in Ontario. The paper shredder is a powerful machine sturdy enough to cut pennies (bottom right).

also keep information on file in the college catalog center," she said. "Students can get an application there, and they are responsible for it."

Copeland said most of the local service club scholarships average about $250. "They (service clubs) are looking not only for good academics but students with outstanding leadership traits," she said.

Some clubs interview prospective candidates; others base their scholarship selection on letters of recommendation from teachers, staff or community members.

Copeland said scholarships which are not based on academic need get the most applicants. "A student will need money for college but (his family) looks wealthy on paper."

She said according to the need-based selection criteria, "anybody making over $20,000 can afford an expensive education for their kid and we know that's not true."

Clubs providing scholarships for some of Upland High School's graduating class were the Upland Kiwanis Club, the Ontario Kiwanis Club, the Ontario Elks Lodge and the Rancho Cucamonga Elks, the Upland Soroptimist Club, and Merrill Lunch Realty.

She said one student received $20,000 in scholarships, one from Chevron, "but that's because he earned it."

The Chaffey School District divides scholarship funds and sets them aside in a trust fund founded by the Chaffey brothers for students at each five high schools, said Bill Vermilya, counselor at Alta Loma High School.

Vermilya said the Chaffey Joint Union High School Trust fund left by the Chaffey brothers provides scholarships ranging from $750 to $2,250 for 18 students, three from each high school.

"Usually two students get the minimum and the other one goes on in further competition, interviewed before community leaders," he said.

He said at Alta Loma High School, scholarship brochures are given to each of the new high school seniors in fall, with an approximate deadline date for applications.

Organizations giving scholarships this year at Alta Loma High School include:

- The PTSA, (parent-teacher-student association). The organization gave six $100 scholarships.

- The ALHS Alumni Trust fund, money left by previous senior classes, provided a $100 scholarship.

Scholarship, named after a woman who had done lots for the school, is $100," Vermilya said, "and it's based on community service and leadership."

• The Rancho Cucamonga Woman's Club gave two $100 scholarships to students in music and fine arts.

• The Rancho Cucamonga Rotary Club gave two Alta Loma High students $250 and Merrill Lynch also gave a scholarship to a student pursuing a business education.

• The Rancho Cucamonga Elks gave two $1,000 scholarships.

• The Communication Workers of America gave a $500 scholarship and the National Manager's Association of Lockheed gave a $500 scholarship.

"All of the scholarships were awarded on the basis of an application and most of them were on merit," he said. "Some are based on need, some on academic skills and leadership qualities."

Vermilya said he recommends students contact the college or university where they choose to attend for financial aid assistance. "They will know which scholarships are available."

He said the California Student Aid Commission is another source of student financial aid but it is "based on academic prowess and has a need component that some students can't qualify for because both parents work and own a house."

He said the application for state aid is a recapitulation of the parent's income tax forms. "I've had some students say their parents don't want to share that information."

Etiwanda High School students received very few scholarships this year, according to Remi Trembley, assistant principal. The class had 170 graduates.

Ralph Lewis, of Lewis Homes, gave two students $500 scholarships; the Rancho Cucamonga Woman's Club gave $200 for a student in fine arts; and Control Data Institute, a computer technology school, gave a half tuition scholarship to its program, which equals $2,850, Trembley said.

The Rancho Cucamonga Elks Club gave two Etiwanda High School students $1,000 each. A donation from Chaffey College was given to a student, consisting of books and supplies for any of the college's courses.

Trembley said information and applications for the financial scholarships were made available to Etiwanda students in the school's career center and in the daily bulletin. □

ENTERTAINMENT & DINING GUIDE

Patience, perseverance pays for artist

By Terri Tirella

Training the eye, not the hand is the key to successful painting, according to Beverly "Bev" Powell, art instructor for Upland Recreation Department.

Powell will offer a new evening watercolor class on Wednesdays, beginning June 26, at Magnolia Recreation Center.

"I've taught hundreds of people," Powell said. "Everybody thinks it takes this one big talent to be an artist; it doesn't. It does take practice, patience and perseverance ... and my students have added another 'P' — the Powell method."

"You become an artist first, then paint and practice, once you know the basics," she said.

Powell uses a step-by-step method. "I bring in a painting I've done ahead and then in class go step-by-step, explaining it and talking it through."

Powell teaches classes in oil and acrylic painting for Upland recreation as well. "I can get lost when doing an oil painting ... but watercolors are fast; you can do it in a few minutes and it doesn't take long to clean up."

Watercolor supplies are also less expensive. "Watercolor is cheaper than oil, supplies are almost half the cost; the paper is cheaper, you can paint on the back," Powell said. "I do believe that you need to have good material, otherwise you're fighting with the equipment ... once you make the initial investment, you really don't have to replenish anything but maybe buy more paper."

Many of her students have been taking her classes for years. Some use it as a hobby, some of her students sell their art. Powell said, she has seen a positive change in the outlooks of her older students because of art. "It has improved their health, their attitudes have changed, some of their problems had cured up, it just has given them a whole new life."

She suggests her students paint their own stationery, especially if they've gotten frustrated with their own art. "When they paint a card and mail it to someone, usually they get so much praise it keeps them painting."

Learning to control water is the key to watercolor painting, Powell said. "First you might have too much paint so there is no transparency; or too much water and too little paint and it fades."

"People say you can't correct watercolors, but you can," she said. "Just put it under a faucet, wash it off and start all over again."

Powell said she concentrates on painting realistic scenes. "I do try to teach a different subject every week. I have photos we paint from or flip through a magazine to paint a forest.

"We do landscape, seascape, florals; I try to vary so I can catch everyone's interest ... They need to learn all kinds of different things. Something they might not want to paint, they'll find it fun, but they would never know if they weren't introduced."

Powell has an answer for people who say they can't draw a straight line: "We don't draw straight lines; if we want a straight line we use a ruler."

She said she tries to keep her classes relaxed and fun. Students do better if they are not tense. "Most people come to learn watercolors as a hobby. If their painting turns out good, great and if it doesn't this time, no big deal."

"I never stop learning," Powell said. "I learn from students by teaching them how to correct their things, I'm learning to see what's really wrong and correct it and I see how my own work has improved."

Watercolor painting focuses on composition, value, line and watercolor technique. Classes are held on Wednesday, from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and the new class is from 7 to 10 p.m. at Magnolia Recreation Center.

Oil and acrylic painting focuses on basic art principles and color mixing techniques for both beginning and advanced students. Class begins on June 25, and will be held on Tuesday evenings, at Upland Community Center, 352 E. C. St. Class fee for five weeks is $25.

For more information on the classes, call 985-0994. □

Not much later, she started teaching an evening oil painting class for Upland recreation in 1979. In 1983, she received one of her most treasured honors, Upland recreation's "Outstanding Instructor of the Year" award.

Before she took on the responsibility of teaching an evening class, she talked it over with her husband. He was very supportive, Powell said. "He said you've been raising kids, taking care of the family, it's your turn ... do your own thing."

Her two sons were not as enthusiastic about her painting when they were youngsters.

"The youngest one said 'our house used to look nice until you hung all these paintings up,'" Powell said. "I told him, 'you don't get famous (as a painter) until you die; I'm building you an estate.'"

Since then her sons have gained an appreciation for her art and ask her for pictures for their homes. They have bought some of her paintings to give as gifts.

"One year my son introduced me to a friend of his as an artist and he didn't say it sarcastically," Powell said. "I almost fainted!"

You can hear a slight, Midwestern twang when Powell speaks. A former Kansas resident, she has lived in the West Valley for 25 years.

Where you've been and what you're familiar with shows up in painting techniques, she said.

"I find if you know a subject, that's something you paint best, something you're familiar with," Powell said. Growing up in Kansas affected some of her

DINING GUIDE

This Week's Featured Restaurant:

Renee's New Mexico Restaurant is located at 9671 Foothill Blvd., west of Archibald in Rancho Cucamonga.

Renee Garduno, owner, has created a unique restaurant tailoring both cuisine and decor after the New Mexico American Indians.

Entering Renee's New Mexico Restaurant the effect is one of entering a small museum. A life-size ceremonially dressed and glass enclosed Indian mannequin is displayed in the small waiting section. The dining area decor includes antiques, kachina dolls, Indian painted cowhides and overhead, manzanita bushes. To further create the New Mexico atmosphere background music includes that of the American Indians.

Renee Garduno began her restaurant career four years ago with her grandfather's words of wisdom to help her through the rough times. "He always told me if I wanted to be successful then do something I know how to do. So I started this restaurant because I know how to cook the New Mexico style cooking, having lived there most of my life," says Renee.

New Mexico's main foodstays include pinto beans, corn & tortillas and chili sauces of which the ristra red chili dominates.

An excellent example of the New Mexico style cooking is the house specialty, Renee's Special New Mexico Enchilada. A delicious dish it consists of two open-face corn tortillas with beef in a traditional Albuquerque Red Sauce, topped with shredded lettuce, cheese, tomato, sour cream and avocado. It is served with rice, beans and sopaipillas.

Another tasty dish is the Steak Picado, a dish of diced top sirloin steak, sauteed in green chili, onion and tomatoes, it is served with salad, rice and beans.

The Geronimo is highly recommended for those with large appetites. Numbered eight on the menu it is a large pork filled tamale and a large cheese filled enchilada in New Mexico red sauce with a large shredded beef taco.

Renee's New Mexico Restaurant offers tamales, tacos, burritos, chili rellanos, enchiladas, taquitos and tostadas a la carte. Dinners are served with rice, beans and sopaipillas.

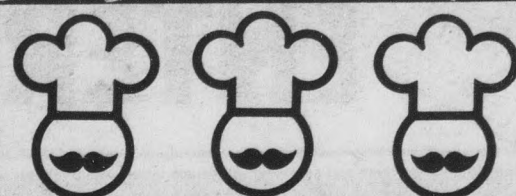

Sopaipillas are delicious. They are deep fried Indian bread, a New Mexico specialty, and are served with honey or cinnamon.

Also offered for dessert is natias, a New Mexico pudding, until now, only found in the homes of New Mexico.

Beginning soon Renee's New Mexico Restaurant will offer daily specials for both lunch and dinner. Featured will be such delights as Indian spaghetti, orange roughy, and a Santa Fe crab and shrimp salad.

Renee's New Mexico Restaurant offers dining, take-out, and catering. The restaurant hours are: Tuesday-Sunday, 11:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

HOBBIES

By Dan Berger
Copley News Service

It has taken a few years, but California wine makers are finally beginning to make Chardonnays that offer the lean, delicate scents and crisp flavors that can make this wine a classic.

Things wrong with California Chardonnays for a long time were a) alcohols that were too high, b) acidity that wasn't natural but had come out of a bag of powdered acid, c) heavy wood flavors from excessive time in the wrong kind of oak barrels, d) slight amounts of residual sugars that lent a lusciousness to the wines and e) oxidation from careless handling and contact with the air.

These wines were obvious, heady and easy to like. They won medals in major wine competitions because judges felt comfortable with wines that so clearly appeared to be Chardonnay; no need to ponder the wine. It stood up and shouted, "I am Chardonnay!" (Although it mostly was the wood that was speaking.)

found that they can make better wine with more carefully honed flavors. This may have happened partly because they have made wine long enough now to see what happens to their best efforts with time in the bottle. The wines collapse under their own weight, tasting far less fruity and far more woody and heavy as time goes on.

Dr. Robert Logan, the wine maker at Cuvaison in the Napa Valley, has a theory on what is happening. It is, he feels, wine makers' realization that oak barrels can be overused, and that cooler climates make fine Chardonnay grapes, and that natural acidity is better than anything from a bag, and that picking grapes earlier is better than picking them later.

In addition, Logan feels that the problem of residual sugar is due to the flaws in the yeast strains that are being used to do the fermentations.

"There is only one wine maker in California, and it's the yeast," he said. To solve that problem of imprecise yeast strains, Logan isolated and developed what he feels is a strain of yeast that yields a complete fermentation.

Logan's approach has been to emphasize the grapefruity-lemmony tones of the grape, and to diminish the use of oak. The '83 Cuvaison Chardonnay is leagues better than previous vintages, and the '84 is better still.

I tasted a tank sample of the '84 recently and found it absolutely remarkable wine, with 1.1 percent acidity (all natural), with the grapes picked slightly underripe. There was very little oak in the wine, yet it was an immensely flavorful wine.

The effect was an intensely rich taste in which the acid played a major role.

Similarly, at a preview of the 1983 Chateau Bouchaine Napa Valley Chardonnay ($13), I found the wine carefully balanced with wonderful natural acidity.

Bouchaine wine maker Jerry Luper handles wood better than most, and this wine is so crafted that it tastes beautiful today, but will improve in the bottle.

Likewise, the 1983 Fenestra Chardonnay "La Reina Vineyard" ($13) is extremely impressive for its slightly herbal, but roundly fruity aroma, and its marvelously tart texture. A superb food wine.

Recently, to test what was happening with California Chardonnays, I tasted seven 1982 Chardonnays with a simple dinner. The wines were served blind, so we didn't know which wine was placed in which position.

The clear winner of four tasters was the 1982 Sterling ($13), with a delicately spicy tone, better acidity and structure than the others, and an excellent wine with the dinner.

Second was the 1982 Fisher ($12), which had a pineapple aroma but restrained oak. It had more fruit than the others.

Third was from Liberty School (second label of Caymus), which sells for less than $10. It had a spice note and more fullness than some of the others, but was clean and well made.

Fourth was from Silver Mountain ($12) with a Ventana Vineyards designation. This was the only wine of the group that was clearly oaky (it had a toasty aroma), but it was a big, gutsy wine with a lingering finish.

Fifth was a 1984 Chardonnay from Corbett Canyon, a new San Luis Obispo winery. The nice thing about the wine was an amazing freshness (it was two years younger than the others on the table), just a hint of oak character, and a very appealing fruitiness that matched well with the food. At $9.75 for a full liter, the wine is amazingly good value these days of expensive Chardonnays.

PETS

By R.G. Elmore
Copley News Service

Q. We recently moved to a Southern state after having lived in the north for over 20 years. Our neighbors told us that we should give our dogs preventive medicine for heartworm disease.

How do dogs get heartworms? Is this something we will need to continue for the entire lifetime of our dogs?

A. Heartworm disease is an example of one of the most interesting interrelationships between worms, insects and mammals. Heartworm disease is spread between dogs by mosquitoes, and can be explained as follows.

A mosquito bites an infected dog. While biting the dog the mosquito ingests circulating microfilaria from the dog's bloodstream. The heartworm microfilaria incubate in the mosquito's body for a period of two to three weeks and then migrate to the mosquito's salivary glands.

Whenever the mosquito bites another dog, infective heartworm larvae are injected into the tissues just beneath the dog's skin. The infective larvae then migrate through the dog's body to the major blood vessels of the heart. This migration stage usually lasts for two to four months.

The larvae then develop into adult worms in the heart and start discharging microfilaria into the dog's bloodstream. This stage takes approximately two months to develop. It is interesting that the migrating infective larvae rarely end up anywhere else than in the heart.

The heartworm larvae must pass through the mosquito to be infective. Blood from one infected dog injected into another dog will not cause the disease. The entire life cycle of the heartworm takes several months to complete.

Tests for heartworm disease rely on detecting microfilaria in the bloodstream. Therefore, tests for heartworms should be performed every six months if the status of the dog is unknown.

Heartworm disease causes problems for the dog because of blockage of the right side of the heart, which literally fills up with worms.

The best cure for heartworm disease in dogs is prevention. Small doses of a drug that keeps the infective larvae from developing into adults can be given. This must be done daily throughout the mosquito season and continued for two months following the mosquito season. In warm climates, the medication must be given throughout the entire year.

These drugs usually can be administered in the dog's food. Heartworm disease medication should be given only under the supervision of a veterinarian. Your veterinarian can advise you regarding whether your particular dog should be on preventive medication for heartworms.

Questions should be mailed to R.G. Elmore, D.V.M., Points on Pets, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Volume of mail prohibits individual responses. Only questions of general interest will be answered in this column.

STAMPS

By Lea Blauvelt
Copley News Service

Want your mail delivered by a Stutz Bearcat? There may be one on the envelope any day now. The United States Postal Service on June 11 issued such an 11-cent coil stamp in the Transportation Series in Baton Rouge, La. It is the 21st stamp in the series, which began in 1981.

In 1911, Harry C. Stutz manufactured an automobile in his machine shop and later drove the car in the Indianapolis 500. The car's performance convinced him to begin producing his own automobiles for sale, and in 1914 his Stutz Motorcar Co. turned out its first model.

The Stutz Bearcat became an immediate sensation. People liked its stylish appearance, speed and exceptional handling. The Great Depression and changing customer tastes caused the discontinuance of the expensive Bearcat and Super Bearcat. The passing of the Stutz Bearcat marked the end of an automotive era, but antique car enthusiasts still maintain hundreds of the classic automobiles.

The stamp was designed by Ken Dallison and was printed in green by the intaglio process. The design features a pen and ink drawing of a Stutz Bearcat based on a photograph. "Stutz Bearcat 1933" runs across the top of the stamp while "11 USA" appears just below on the left.

The USPS on June 20 issued a 14-cent postal card depicting colonial patriot George Wythe at Colonial Williamsburg in Williamsburg, Va. It is the latest addition to the American Patriots Series.

Wythe was one of the original signers of the Declaration of Independence and served in the Continental Congress. Although his formal education was limited, he became one of colonial America's foremost classical scholars.

During his tenure as professor of law at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Wythe endeavored to create a generation of leaders. He taught many of Virginia's future leading lawyers and jurists, including Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall, James Monroe and Henry Clay.

The indicium of the card features a facial illustration of Wythe, designed by Chet Jezierski. The card was printed by letterpress at the Government Printing Office in both single and double reply styles. "USA 14" appears in olive green type at the bottom right of the design, while "George Wythe" appears at the top left, followed by "Patriot" on the right.

The usual procedures for first-day cancellations will be observed for both of the above issues.

For those purchasing stamp and/or postal cards at local post offices, the following addresses are supplied.

Send addressed, stamped Stutz Bearcat envelopes to: Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Postmaster, Baton Rouge, LA 70821-9991. (Remember to use two stamps so that the requirement for first-class postage rates are satisfied.)

Send the addressed postal cards to: Customer-Provided Stationery, Postmaster, Williamsburg, VA 23185-9991. No remittance is required for either of these.

If the USPS is to supply the stamp, send addressed covers, plus 22 cents (in check form only) to: Stutz Bearcat Stamp, Postmaster, Baton Rouge, LA 70821-9992.

If the USPS is to supply the cards, send address labels, 14 cents for each single card and 28 cents for each double card (in check form only), to: George Wythe Postal Card, Postmaster, Williamsburg, VA 23185-9992.

The deadline for posting orders on the Stutz Bearcat stamp is a July 11 postmark and for the George Wythe postal card, July 20.

SWEDEN — On May 21, Sweden issued two stamps honoring Canute the Holy's deed of gift in 1085, two stamps noting the centennial of the Swedish Touring Club and a souvenir sheet containing four stamps paying homage to STOCKHOLMIA '86.

The Canute the Holy stamps appear to be se-tenant coils, one printed in blue and one in red, and both of 2-krona value. Both picture the Danish king on horseback — taken from his seal — and one shows Lund Cathedral on the right, while the other shows the town of Helsingborg. Canute donated vast land holdings to the see in Lund.

Stockholm in art is the theme of the STOCKHOLMIA '86 sheet. It pictures four different visions of Stockholm as seen by four prominent Swedish artists during the first half of the 20th century.

THE BIG O STORY

Over 20 years ago, not far from the Colorado Rocky Mountains, Big O Tires began with a different idea in mind.

Big O wanted to be more than just a name on a tire. Big O wanted to sell tires that would stand up to the challenges of the mountains.

Even then, Big O knew Southern California was a risky place to buy tires. That's why Big O brand tires come without any add-ons, gimmicks or anything except a free "No Risks. No Regrets." Warranty. No matter what happens, Big O repairs or replaces a passenger or RV tire free. And there's a free lifetime service plan for maximum tire life.

Nowadays, Big O has over 200 stores from Kentucky to California. It just goes to show you how far you can go with no risks—and no regrets.

PHOTO TIPS

By Holt Confer
Copley News Service

I don't know whether or not someone is working on a set of photographic trivia, but here's a start:

Q. Why do Leopold Godowsky Jr. and Leopold Mannes have a permanent spot in the Photographic Hall of Fame?

A. Godowsky and Mannes were the inventors of Kodachrome.

Even more interesting is the fact that neither of these men were professional chemists. They were avidly interested in photography, but both were musicians. Well-connected musicians, I might add. Leopold Mannes' uncle was Walter Damrosch, one-time conductor of the New York Symphony. As I think back, I can remember listening to music appreciation radio broadcasts in grade school of the New York Symphony with Walter Damrosch as the conductor.

While Leopold Godowsky's father was a noted pianist, composer and conductor, his brother-in-law was George Gershwin.

Obviously, research into developing a usable color film wasn't just a frivolous pastime — it was being done to fill a need, to solve a problem. Before 1935, color photography was the nearly impregnable bastion of dedicated professional photographers and filmmakers. Expensive three-color filters for both the camera and projector were necessary to provide separation of light into the three components of the color spectrum: red, green and blue-violet. Pictures made with these three filters were then combined to produce a final color image.

These days, we take color transparencies so much for granted, it's difficult to imagine having to work that hard to produce a colored picture. I suspect if producing colored pictures still required that type of dedication, we would not be subjected to the constant whirring of motor drives during major news conferences.

As you might well expect, all this filtering took its toll. First of all, a great deal of light was needed to take a picture making great depth of field nearly impossible to achieve. Then, definition was poor. And finally, you had to project on a very small screen because of the drastic light loss during projection.

Godowsky and Mannes experimented until they were able to eliminate external color filters by combining layers of emulsion sensitive to the primary colors within the film itself. A single film base was coated with three superimposed emulsions — a red-sensitive layer next to the base, a green-sensitive layer in the middle and a blue-sensitive layer on top.

The upper two emulsions were separated by a filter layer, which was decolorized during processing. A second filter layer also separated the two lower emulsions — a feat that led Kodak to boast of their new Kodachrome film as being "five layers of film in one."

This past April, Kodachrome was 50 years old. Why, I'll bet several of you old codgers out there even remember when Kodachrome was introduced — when the film was packaged in little metal cans and it cost 1½ cents to mail the exposed film back to Kodak for processing.

In 1984, over 12 billion pictures were created in the United States. Not all on Kodachrome, of course, but the development of an easy-to-use color film must get a lot of credit for the current popularity of photography. Even with the advent of faster and faster films, you might be surprised to learn that Kodachrome 64 and Kodachrome 25 are still the preferred choice of many professional photographers; additionally, a great many stock photo houses ask their contributing photographers to make their submissions on one of these 50-year-old photographic emulsions.

That's a quick look at the history of Kodachrome, and I'm certain you'll see a lot on the subject this year from the Kodak public relations people.

As for the Photographic Hall of Fame I mentioned in the beginning of this column, as far as I know it's something I just made up. However, if there's nothing like that in existence and a benevolent corporation or trust fund wants to discuss the idea, call me.

In the meantime, say happy birthday to your next roll of Kodachrome.

FOUR HOT WAYS TO COOL DOWN YOUR ELECTRIC BILL.

If your summer electric bills seem to increase with the temperature, here are a few suggestions that could lower your electric cooling costs. But read them carefully. Certain measures may be more cost effective than others, depending upon where you live.

1. High-Efficiency Air Conditioner.

When you replace your old air conditioner, choose a high-efficiency air conditioner. It can keep you cool using less energy and that can lower your bill. And, the added efficiency can even pay for itself in the long run. Plus, Edison helps with a rebate of $421 to qualified customers.

2. Pre-cooler.

If you have a central air conditioning unit and live in a very warm climate, adding a pre-cooler can improve your system's efficiency. Pre-coolers attach directly to the condenser section and pre-cool the incoming air so your air conditioner can work on less energy. Edison offers a $100 cash rebate on approved pre-coolers.

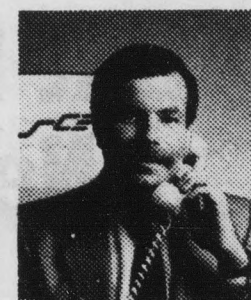

3. Central Heat Pump.

A heat pump is a year-round heating and cooling system. In the summer, it works as an air conditioner by removing heat from inside your home and pumping it outside. In the winter, a heat pump extracts heat from the outside air and moves it through your home. This is two to three times more efficient than traditional systems. Install a new heat pump and you may qualify for a $915 cash rebate. Or replace an older model with a new, high-efficiency heat pump for a $421 rebate.

4. Free Energy Tips Booklet.

"Hot Tips for a Cool Summer" will give you even more ways to save on your cooling bills. It covers things you can do to limit your need for air conditioning and tips on the most energy-efficient cooling appliances. Best of all, it's free. Call 1-800-952-5062 and a Southern California Edison Representative will send you our free booklet right away.

Call 1-800-952-5062 for a free Home Energy Survey.

You must have a Home Energy Survey recommendation prior to the purchase and installation of any of these improvements. If you're an Edison customer, one of our Representatives can show you which of these energy-saving improvements and practices work best for you. They'll also tell you how to qualify for rebates, tax credits and low interest financing. Cool down your summer electric bill. Call and arrange your free Home Energy Survey today.

Fishback returns to Orange Show track

SAN BERNARDINO — For Jim Fishback Jr., the speedway motor bike king turned off road racer, Saturday night's Off Road Championship Gran Prix at the Orange Show Stadium will be a homecoming with slightly different surroundings.

For nine years, the 31-year-old Etiwanda racer was a hero to local speedway bike racing fans who cheered his gutsy riding style and nicknamed him "The Animal" because of his fiery temperament for getting right up after a bad fall and riding harder than ever.

Then in 1983, Fishback discovered off road racing, and for the past three years, he has been a regular competitor in Mickey Thompson's annual Off Road Championship Gran Prix series, racing on four wheels instead of two (most of the time) in the popular and highly competitive Volkswagen Super 1600 class.

His return to the Orange Show Stadium Saturday night is expected to bring out a mass reunion of "Animal" fans anxious to welcome back their hero while getting their first taste of closed course off road competition which Thompson is presenting for the first time at the San Bernardino location.

"They won't be disappointed," Fishback says. "They're going to love off road racing. It's the wildest show in motorsports."

"This has always been a good crowd at the Orange Show," he added. "They appreciate and love aggressive racing and I can guarantee they'll be seeing a lot of that."

Fishback, who father, Jim Sr., also races and will be unveiling a new Volkswagen Golf-bodied car in the popular new Uniroyal UltraStock class, has developed a new five-speed transmission which he and the elder Fishback will be using at the Orange Show.

"It's based on a motorcycle concept," young Fishback explained. "We retained the stock Volkswagen case and ring and pinion but replaced everything else with parts of our own design."

"We think it will revolutionize closed course off road racing because it gives the advantage of a five-speed performance which hasn't been available before, is more reliable under the terrific strain, and doesn't use a clutch."

Fishback hopes the new transmission will give him an edge over competitors like recent Baja winner Frank Arciero Jr., current class points leader

Ken Kazarian and veterans Bob Gordon, Jerry Welch, Greg George and David Bonner who are among the Volkswagen Super 1600 entrants.

"We're going to win some races with it," Fishback says. "It's our secret weapon."

The June 22 event at the Orange Show represents round three of the 1985 Off Road Championship Gran Prix series which moves to the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum next month before returning to San Bernardino for the series finale.

A total of 17 races including heat races and main events for Unlimited Single Seaters, Super 1600s, Grand National sport trucks, Uniroyal UltraStocks, three and four-wheel ATVs and Odysseys make up the family-oriented evening of racing entertainment.

The all-new course designed by Thompson will utilize portions of the Orange Show's paved track as well as portions of the infield, presenting a totally different challenge to drivers and their machines.

A special Drivers Autograph Session, traditional at all of Thompson's events, is scheduled from 5:30-6:30 p.m. offering fans a chance to meet all of the competitors and view their exotic racing machines close up.

The first race gets underway at 7 p.m.
